Hongkong, June 10th, 1889. THE Hongkoog Sanitary Board to-day completes the first year of its existence. The time is not an inappropriate one to ask whether it has proved a success or the reverse. That it has disappointed some of the expectations formed of it may be at once admitted. The amount of talk to' amount of work has been in the proportion of FALSTAFE's intolerable deal of sack to a half-pennyworth of bread, and the tone which has pervaded the discussions has not always been such as to command public respect. For this state of things perhaps Mr. FRANCIS is more responsible than any other member. The learned Queen's Counsel amplating_the notorious Dr. Tanner, bar been predigal of insult and invective, and has, we fear, done more harm than good to the cause of popular rights. Writing on the subject of the election twelve months ago we said-" Mr. FRANCIS's legal knowledge. his skill in debate, his long and intimate acquaintance with the colony, his knowledge of the social condition of all sections of the population, give him qualifications for the position that can be equalled by few.". We still entertain the same opinion of the learned gentleman's intellectual abilities, and his intentions are no doubt excellent but his method is undoubtedly bad. At the last meeting of the Board ove find Mr FRANCIS insulting the official members b telling them they would vote according to being so elected and the others appointed orders and not according to conscience. > Kuhlow's Trade Review of the 1st May, has some remarks on the amount of success achieved by the North German Lloyd's steamers to China and Japan and Australia, since they began running in July 1886. The results have not been so satisfactory from a German point of view a might be wished, judging by the goods traffic quantity of goods carried by the steamers of the North German Lloyd during the period above mentioned to and from Eastern Asia and Austrália, was 57,000 tons, of a value of 75,373,000 mks.; made up of 26,412 tons, and 31.345.000 mks, value outwards, and 30.588 tous and 44,028,000 mks, value homewards. Among the goods outward, the value of those of German origin was 23.416.000 tons, (74-7 per cent), in the homeward cargoes, the value of goods for Germany was 10,734,000 mks. (244 per cent.) The reason of the smallness of the percentage of the last item is found principally in the fact that the North German Lloyd have to exert themselves to the utmost, to obtain freights of raw silk in China and Japan, wool and skins in Australia, and tobacco in Singapore, and that according to present business conditions, although these articles to a great extent eventually find a market in Germany, they first pass through the hands of foreign brokers, and therefore do not appear in the list as intended for Germany. Thus raw silk of the value of 81 million marks was landed at Genoa, tobacco of the value of over 10 million marks and wool value 2,400,100 mks. at Antwerp, and even of the wool, value 4,400,000 mks, and hides, value 1,000,000 mks., landed a Bremerhaven a part (900,000 mks. and 750,000 mks. respectively) was for England. -

THE CHARGE AGAINST A NAVAL SURGEON.

The Court Martial on Staff Surgeon Ma- tival between certain villagers and the crew of grane, of H.M.S. Conquest, for neglect of duty and intemperance, was resumed on board the Victor Emanuel on Saturday. Dr. Yeo, oross-examined by the defend nt, said -I do not think I have talked over this mutter in a way prejudicial to the defendant. The temperatures to en in Piddler's case from the morning of the 6th to the 9th May gave an indication of collapse. I consider those temperatures to be such as may be seen in a typical case of typhoid fever. I considered the patient to have been ill ten days or a fortnight before those temperatures were taken. I can't say from the chart that Piddler had been ill for some time previous to the time those temperatures reier to. The chart is not all I have to go on in answering questions on temperature. I do not, in framing my replies, rely on information obtained in the Court of inquiry. I speak from general experience.

This closed the case for the prosecution. Capt. Henderson said the only other point was that Piddler had been ill for sometime beevidence of this, although he did not bring it hundred

I should consider that perforation took place on the night previous to his death. If perforation t ok place then, and, considering the state the patient was in when I saw him, I can hardly think it possible that a medical man should regard the case as one of simple continued fever at 9.30 a.m. or thereabouts the same morning. consider that simple continued fever was not a proper description of the case from the result of bits the post mortem examination. Putting aside the post mortem, and as an expert considering the temperature chart and the statement signed by the defendant on the morning of the 10th stating that the patient was attacked by severe abdominal pain and vomiting, do you consider that a medical man would be justified or three weeks ago, in reference to some other in diagnosing the case as one of simple continued

THE FIRE ON BOARD THE AUSTRIAN STEAMER "BLEKTRA."

The Penang Gazette says :-- On Sunday afternoon, the 26th May, a telephonic message was received here from the lighthouse keeper at preparation was made to render the necessary port; and as it was feared that a large fire might break out on opening the hatches, cast to have prompt assistance close at hand if necessary. Happily the fire was discovered to be smouldering underneath, and no immediate assistance was required. Precautions however, were taken to bring her afterwards into shallow water, between the green and No. I buoys, where she now is, in case it might be found necessary to scuttle her. The pumps were slong-ide shortly after, and were at once made to play on the hatch from which the smoke issued. Some of the police attempted to go down the hold, am ug whom were Captain Mackenzie and Sergeant Leahor, but were soon driven out by the smoke : the two officers mentioned. with several others, being hauled up insensible, The pumps were made to work all night under of the 27th a fresh butch of coolies was taken on board to relieve these who were tired. and an additional nump was also shipped by Mr. Cuscaden on a tongkang and taken alongside the steamer. With the aid of so many pumps, the fire was extinguished by about half-past two o'clock the same afternoon. No one can say what was the origin, but it is believed it must have originated from damp cotton. Owing to the strong flood tide running on Monday, this unfortunate, vessel, after the fire on board had been extinguished, drifted on to the edge of the bank and stuck fast. During the night, at high water, an attempt was made with her own engines to get her off, but without success. From the time, however, that the fire was extinguished, she was being lightened by the discharge of her damaged carge and the pumping out of the water in the forehold, the result being that at high water again the next he states that foreign women are more useful in morning, she drifted further on to the bank, her stern becoming embedded desper in the mud: At noon another attempt was made to float her with the assistance of the steamer Ho Kuci and Teutonia, but in vain. Subsequently her bower anchor was taken out, by the Ho Kwei assisted by the Rosebud, and a large kedge anchor was cast into deep water to prevent further drifting. On Wednesday morning, all preparations having been made, with the help of her anchors and her engines, and with the assistance of the steamer Flintshire to tow her, she was successfully got off, and east anchor in mid channel. In avoiding the Elektra after the tow line was dropped from that vessel, the Flintshire accidently got the slack of it twisted round her propellor. She was therefore obliged to anchor in shallow water. and it-was sometime before the propeller was

If Schofield made himself amenable to the law, then his own connection with the daughter of a man in prison or a convict, would be a repreach and a scandal. If the scoundrel wore at large; he would be an annoyance from which he never could hope to shake

The letters from his wife did not please him Clearly Janet was not so ill as had been represented to him; not so ill as to require her sister there, especially as she had three nieces with her. He was uncomfortable without his wife - he was uncomfortable because his future was vague, and he associated the annovance this caused him with her absence, and put it, unconsciously, to her account. He did not consider what his own conduct had been, and how he had almost driven her from the house and from her child, and he found fault with her for deserting him and the I cannot remember now whether she went off babe so readily on a frivolous excuse.

No doub. Salome was enjoying herself; she was so full of admiration over the scenery, the flowers, so struck with the variety of life she met with.
